

This will be at the top of your bulletin board/wall:

I have so many worksheets, reports and project ideas to use during the Olympics for educational purposes since so many people are being so creative. My children are really looking forward to keeping track of the medal counts for all of the countries. At first I was going to create a worksheet/bar graph for them to use on daily basis. It dawned on me that a chart/graph was absolutely no fun at all, so I created this "bulletin board" set. My intent is to spread out the countries all over several walls and have the children add the gold, silver or bronze medal to the country each day. I thought this would be fun hands on interactive way for the children to learn about all of the countries involved in the 2012 Olympics as well as have fun visually watching the medal count around the world. I hope that you and your family (or classroom) enjoys using this set during the Olympics!
